

London-based Margaret Doyle is an international speaker, writer and moderator of dialogue focusing on global business and finance. She is a senior commentator and facilitator at board room and ministerial level, and an internationally-recognised expert on macroeconomics, corporate strategy, business leadership and finance. She is respected for presenting new insights on complex subjects in a straightforward and engaging way. An articulate and incisive presenter she possesses strong, natural moderating skills.

Margaret was the editor of Global Agenda, the World Economic Forum's Davos magazine. Previously she was finance correspondent for The Economist and then editor of Economist TV.

Her comments are regularly sought on business, the economy and the stock market, with frequent television commentary on NBC, CNN, ITV (UK) and NHK (Japan) and others. She is a newspaper reviewer on BBC Breakfast and Sky News Sunrise, a radio commentator on various BBC shows and also NPR, including commentaries on Marketplace, America's biggest business radio programme.

A great moderator, examples of her experience include chairing European Commission's ministerial meetings, ING's annual leadership conference, Harvard Business School's Global Leadership Forum, KPMG's roundtable on Transatlantic Trade, and seminars at Commonfund annual investment conference. She is retained, as Contributing Editor, to chair a series of Economist Conferences' events, including industry flagship events on banking, insurance, franchising, property, retail and shipping, and elite executive roundtables on subjects like mergers and acquisitions, public-private partnerships and public sector reform.

She is invited to deliver keynote speeches at many events around the world, including to KPMG partners (Rome, Silicon Valley) and alumni (Rotterdam), The Mersey Partnership, Enterprise Ireland's CEO Forum (alongside Willie Walsh, BA CEO), and the Institute of European Affairs. She also advises companies on thought leadership.

Topics include:
